FIND THE RIGHT SIZE FOR YOUR FINGER

The best moment to get the most accurate measurement of your finger is at the end of the day, in a place where the temperature is neither too high nor too low. Remember that the two hands can have slightly different sizes; so a ring that fits well on one finger of one hand may not be suitable for the same finger of the other hand.

Make sure the size you choose for the ring allows sliding along the entire finger.

For measuring, you can use a tape measure, assessing the circumference of the finger in millimeters.

In case you do not have a tape measure, you can use simple alternatives like one strip of paper or a thin cotton string.

Gently wrap it around the finger and mark where the round ends, making sure it is neither too tight nor too wide. Then, lay the strip up a ruler and measure in millimeters up to the point you marked.

After taking the measurement, compare it to the chart above to find the corresponding ring size.
